12	Ankit filed a suit against Vishal for the specific performance of the contract in 2015. The suit was decreed by the trial court in favour of Ankit. Vishal, who felt aggrieved by the decree of the trial court, filed a delayed appeal in the district court along with an application for condonation of delay. Vishal, the appellant asserted that while he was coming to the court to file an appeal, on the last day when the limitation period was to expire, he met with an accident and therefore he could not file the appeal within the prescribed period of limitation. He prayed for the condonation of delay in filing the appeal. Ankit, the respondent, did not dispute the fact of the appellant meeting with an accident on the last day but contended that the appellant was non-diligent for the whole of the earlier period of limitation prescribed and could have filed the appeal earlier. Determine whether in the given circumstances the delay can be condoned by the Court or not? Would your answer be different if instead of an accident, appellant had failed to file an appeal due to the reason of some important business meeting? Give Reason in support of your answer.	20	CO3
